Words from Father Rob Kinnally

Understanding the Mass – The Liturgy of the Word, Part 2

After the Scripture readings, the celebrant preaches the homily. The word “homily” is derived from the Greek word homilia which means “conversation.” In our tradition we use the word “homily” rather than “sermon” because a sermon can be offered outside of a religious service and is often focused on morals, and may not draw from the Scripture. In the homily, the preacher focuses on the Scripture texts or some other texts from the liturgy, drawing from them lessons that may help us to live our discipleship better and be more faithful to Christ’s call to grow in holiness.

The Code of Canon Law outlines the function and requirement of preaching:

Canon 767 §1. Among the forms of preaching, the homily, which is part of the liturgy itself and is reserved to a priest or deacon, is preeminent; in the homily the mysteries of faith and the norms of Christian life are to be explained from the sacred text during the course of the liturgical year. §2. A homily must be given at all Masses on Sundays and holy days of obligation which are celebrated with a congregation, and it cannot be omitted except for a grave cause. §3. It is strongly recommended that if there is a sufficient congregation, a homily is to be given even at Masses celebrated during the week, especially during the time of Advent and Lent or on the occasion of some feast day or a sorrowful event.

So, did you ever wonder how preachers come up with the material for their homilies? Well, as I just mentioned, most homilies are drawn from the Scripture of the day. The preparation is a combination of prayer, study, and awareness. When I am crafting a Sunday homily, I usually read the Scripture for the upcoming Sunday as early as the Monday before. I let the words sit with me as the week progresses, and I am attentive to what is going on in the world, our country, and more locally. By mid-week, I have a more developed sense of an outline for the homily, and I may consult several commentaries in order to consider an insight, detail or clarifying point. Then I pray for inspiration, asking the Holy Spirit to give me what I need to say what the Lord wants me to say. By Friday, everything has usually come together and Saturday morning is a time for more prayer, the confirmation of the main points and the tweaking of details.

In many Masses, the Profession of Faith then follows the homily, either the Nicene or Apostles' Creed. The Nicene Creed is a statement of faith dating from the fourth century, while the Apostles' Creed is the ancient baptismal creed of the Church in Rome. If baptismal promises are renewed, from a formula based on the Apostles' Creed, this takes the place of the Creed.

The Liturgy of the Word concludes with the Universal Prayer, also called the Prayer of the Faithful. The gathered assembly intercedes with God on behalf of the Church, the world, and themselves, entrusting their needs to the faithful and loving God.

Next week we will turn our attention to the Liturgy of the Eucharist.

Have a blessed week!
