Words from Monsignor Rob Kinnally

Less of Me

If you are going to live your life with Christ, one of the great challenges is to forget yourself. We live in a very introverted society, which is always focusing on me, me, me. I think the great challenge, if you are going to be alive, is sometimes the great liberation of forgetting yourself – that’s when you discover in other people their need for your love, and their need for your trust. –

Fr. Timothy Radcliffe, OP

This quote from Father Timothy Radcliffe, the former Master General of the Dominicans (Order of Preachers), is pretty challenging; but what if we consider it in light of what Jesus says about life, sacrifice, and surrendering to God? Here’s what Jesus says: Whoever finds his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it. (Matthew 10:39).

OK, fine: Jesus is saying we have to be selfless and sacrifice for Him -- awesome! But it all still sounds challenging. So, let’s place this in Lent and try to understand what Father Timothy and Jesus are really asking of us.

Too often we see Lent as a time of denial – no chocolate, no social media, no this, no that. I believe that if we’re experiencing Lent the way that Jesus and the Church intended, it shouldn’t be denial for the sake of denial. Our Lent should be about transformation. Lent is the time of year when we should meditate on the suffering, dying, and rising of Christ and challenge ourselves to be more like Christ. Transforming ourselves means making more room for God by clearing our own agendas and allowing God to write our life plan. Making room for God may mean less chocolate, social media or whatever else takes up space and time that could be space and time for God. But it also means having a daily conversation with God who wants our hearts to be close to His heart. Transformation from prayer is the result of letting go of self and letting God speak while we listen, learn, grow, and fall more in love with God.

As usual, the Church has a cool term for such a thing – “Kenosis.” It means an emptying out of our own will so as to submit wholeheartedly to God’s will. It means denying ourselves and allowing God in. It doesn’t mean we disappear into nothingness, but it does mean that we have come to know and trust God enough to get out of the way and allow God to carry out His loving plan for us and imagine its beauty. Kenosis is the most liberating reality because it acknowledges that God loves us without condition and will carry out his loving desires for us with grace – if we allow Him to do so.

The pillars of Lent: prayer, fasting, and almsgiving help us to get ready to be transformed. And Lenten Transformation means letting go and emptying out so we are better children of God who live more fully and do the good that God wants us to do. May we do the clearing out that makes room for God’s grace and enables us to be truly present to God and to others. May we have the best Lent ever because we have allowed God in to help us become the disciples He has always wanted us to be.

Father Rob
