From St. Aloysius to Rome: A Journey of Music, Faith & Prayer

By Jeffrey Taveras, Cantor

This past September, I was blessed with an opportunity I will carry with me for the rest of my life: traveling to Rome to participate in the International Week at the Pontifical Institute of Sacred Music. What began as a dream of studying sacred music in Rome became something greater—a pilgrimage that renewed my understanding of music, ministry, prayer, and faith.

Throughout the week, I studied alongside singers, musicians, conductors, and ministers from around the world. Although we came from different countries, cultures, and musical traditions, we shared one purpose: using the gift of music in service to God and His Church.

Our days were filled with study, rehearsals, Gregorian chant, sacred music, Lauds, Mass, Adoration, and Vespers. I learned from accomplished teachers and musicians who challenged me to think more deeply about sacred music and its role in the liturgy. One of the greatest lessons I brought home is that sacred music is not simply something we perform. When offered with faith and intention, music becomes prayer.

The musical highlight of my journey was the extraordinary privilege of singing at St. Peter's Basilica with more than 100 singers. Standing inside St. Peter's and hearing our voices fill that sacred space was overwhelming.

I remember thinking, "I finally had the opportunity to paint my voice on those walls." For a moment, it wasn't about performing. It was simply prayer. I was also blessed to participate in the Angelus and receive Pope Leo's blessing, another moment I will never forget.

One particularly meaningful stop was the Church of St. Ignatius of Loyola, where I visited the chapel dedicated to St. Aloysius Gonzaga. Standing before our parish's patron saint so far from home was incredibly special. I prayed for our parish, clergy, ministries, families, and everyone we serve.

In many ways, St. Aloysius was very much with me in Rome.

I returned home with more than photographs, music, and memories. I returned renewed. This journey reminded me that the gifts God gives us are not ours to keep. They are meant to be shared—to comfort, inspire, serve, evangelize, and ultimately lead others closer to Him.

I am deeply grateful to Msgr. Kinnally and St. Aloysius Parish for supporting my continued formation and making this opportunity possible. I look forward to bringing what I learned in Rome back into my ministry here at St. Aloysius.

I went to Rome hoping to become a better sacred musician.

I came home understanding more deeply that every note I sing can be a prayer.

Deo gratias.

How Do We Forgive What We Cannot Forget?

An evening with Jennifer Hubbard

Drawing from her book Forgiving the Unforgivable, Jennifer Hubbard shares her personal journey of faith, grief, and forgiveness after losing her six-year-old daughter, Catherine, in the Sandy Hook shooting. Through her story and Scripture, Jennifer explores what forgiveness means—and what it doesn't—offering a compassionate perspective on how forgiveness can lead to healing and peace without forgetting or excusing the past.

Invite Our Blessed Mother Into YOUR Home

Our beautiful statue of the Blessed Mother was brought back from Fatima to St. Aloysius by members of Our Lady's Guild in 2005. It has been traveling to families in our parish since then. Those who have had the statue and prayed the rosary speak of the blessings received.

Rosary beads and instructions on how to say the Rosary accompany the statue. Please take the opportunity to introduce this beautiful devotion to your family. If you have any questions about the statue, or how to say the Rosary or would like to reserve a time to have the statue, please text or email Sue Lione, 203-981-6395, suelione523@gmail.com. Music Notes for the All Saints Dr. John Michniewicz, Director of Music

The Solemnity of All Saints honors all who have died and are now fully united with God. These include the canonized saints, those whom the Church has formally declared to be saints, as well as the many holy women and men who now rest in God's presence. The Catechism of the Catholic Church describes the saints as those who see God "face to face," and this longing to see God appears in each of Sunday's readings. In the First Reading, from the Book of Revelation, John sees "a great multitude, which no one could count," wearing white robes and standing before the throne of God. Psalm 24 voices this hope in its refrain: "Lord, this is the people that longs to see your face." The Second Reading promises that the faithful will one day see God clearly and will become like God. Then, in the Gospel Reading, Jesus opens the Sermon on the Mount with the Beatitudes. Jesus, in each beatitude, names those who are blessed by God: the poor in spirit, those who mourn, the meek, those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, the merciful, the clean of heart, the peacemakers, and those persecuted for righteousness. The longing to see God is echoed in the beatitude: "Blessed are the clean of heart, for they will see God."

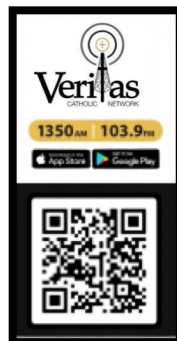

Sunday's Entrance hymn, For All the Saints (W-891), describes the "countless host" streaming "through gates of pearl," echoing the great multitude in Revelation. Its tune, SINE NOMINE, means "without a name," and it has been suggested that the name refers to the many saints whose names are not known. The Presentation hymn, God, We Praise You (W-599), is a paraphrase of the ancient Te Deum, naming apostles, prophets, saints, and martyrs joined in one song of praise. At the 11:30 Mass, the Choir will sing O Pray for the Peace of Jerusalem, a setting of Psalm 122, one of the Songs of Ascents sung by pilgrims going up to the Temple in Jerusalem.

At Communion, Taste and See (W-952) sets Psalm 34, which has been sung at Communion since at least the fourth century. Its final verse adds that "the LORD is close to the brokenhearted," echoing the Gospel's blessing on those who mourn. At the 11:30 Mass, the Choir will sing Remember Your Servants, Lord, a setting of the Beatitudes on the tune KONTAKION, a melody from the Russian Orthodox liturgy, arranged by Richard Proulx, and The Lord Is My Shepherd from John Rutter's Requiem, a setting of Psalm 23, which fittingly ends with the words "and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever." The Final Hymn, Holy God, We Praise Thy Name (W-614), is also a paraphrase of the Te Deum, which names the white-robed martyrs, echoing the multitude in white robes in Sunday's First Reading.
